HEALTH SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

Missouri credit unions can serve as trustees for health savings accounts (HSAs) established by their members. Additional information about HSAs, including details concerning the type of high deductible health plan an individual must obtain to qualify for an HSA, is available from the Public Affairs Office of the U.S. Department of the Treasury. The information and the proposed forms are directly accessible from the Treasury web site, www.ustreas.gov. Authority for this activity is found in RSMo 370.070(1), 370.070(10) and 4 CSR 100-2.080(4F).

NCUA recently amended its rules 12 CFR Parts 721 and 724 to permit federal credit unions under incidental powers to serve as trustees for HSAs.

CHECK 21

The Check Clearing for the 21st Century Act, often referred to as Check 21, becomes effective October 28, 2004. The regulation introduced by the Federal Reserve Board provides more efficiency in the payment system process and reduces float. In essence, the Fed is using the new regulation to encourage financial institutions to process checks and share drafts electronically. Although there is no requirement to perform the electronic process, the use of this method will reduce the requirement to transport paper checks and drafts across the country, increasing efficiency within the payment processing system.

Credit unions must take at least three steps before Check 21 becomes effective:

- 1) Provide education on substitute checks and consumer recredit rights.
- 2) Be prepared to accept substitute checks.
- 3) In the first statement cycle after October 28th, members who currently receive their original share drafts in their monthly statements must be notified that they will probably begin receiving substitute drafts rather than the originals.

A substitute check/draft is basically a printed copy (which meets industry specifications) made from the electronic transmission of the original check/draft. Employees must be trained to recognize and process a substitute check.

Although every member is not required to receive a disclosure immediately, it may be easier for credit unions to provide everyone a disclosure in the first statement after October 28th and then provide new members the disclosure at the time the account is opened.

Please be aware that substitute checks are NOT legal documents until 10/28. However, if you receive one, you may wish to contact the member to determine if it is their wish to pay the item.

What can you do to prepare for Check 21? According to the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, you should do the following:

- Learn about substitute checks and how they will affect your credit union.
- Develop procedures and scripts for your member contact staff to manage inquiries and claims arising from substitute checks.
- Ensure employees understand the consumer provisions of Check 21.
- Familiarize yourself with the expedited recredit provisions required by the Act.
- Prepare to send out disclosures as required by the legislation.

HOOK, LINE, & SINKER

Most of us know by now not to give out our passwords, ATM PINs, or other secret information when requested by e-mail. But an increasing number of people are giving out that information, even those of us who should know better. So how are members being fooled? Let's just say it doesn't involve a pole, worms, and your favorite fishing hole.

Members are being fooled by a scheme called "Phishing". Phishing is the term coined by hackers who imitate legitimate companies, financial institutions, etc. in e-mails or pop up windows to entice people to share passwords, credit-card numbers, and all other personal information. Although phishing schemes are prevalent all over the world, Missouri credit union's received its first legitimate case in 2003 when Century Credit Union members were directed to a Web page that looked nearly identical to the credit union's site. Although Century Credit Union quickly detected this malicious activity, this type of scam continues to present a huge risk to the naive credit union member.

The best defense a credit union can employ is educating its membership. The following should be clearly explained to your membership in an effort to avoid phishing schemes.

- If the member receives an unexpected e-mail indicating their account will be shut down unless they confirm their billing information, DO NOT REPLY OR CLICK ANY LINKS in the body of the email. Many times members may be curious to see where the link goes, however some links may have viruses or Trojan horses embedded within them that may assist in disclosing members' personal information located on their home PC.
- Before submitting financial information through a Web site, ensure the member looks for the "lock" icon on the browser's status bar. It means the Web site uses encryption technology and ensures the member's information is secure during transmission. (See Figure 1).

- If the member is uncertain about the information contained on the credit union's website or email, the member should contact the credit union as soon as possible.
- If the member has already unknowingly supplied personal or financial information, the member should contact the credit union immediately.
- All suspicious e-mail can be forwarded to uce@ftc.gov, and complaints should be filed with the Missouri attorney general's office <http://www.ago.mo.gov/consumercomplaint.htm> or through the Federal Trade Commission (F.T.C.) at www.ftc.gov.

If you have any questions or concerns, feel free to contact either your state examiner at (573) 751-3419 or e-mail me at MO04@NCUA.gov.
